

- Carfind
- Business Directory
- Extras
-

- Local Coverage
- Local Politics
- Columnists
- Opinion
- National
- U.S. Politics
- International
- Offbeat News
- Obituaries

Log in | Register Mon, June 14, 2010
 66° F | Traffic

SEARCH: Past 14 days Archives Home

- News & Opinion
- Local Coverage

The eyes have it for service dogs

By Renee Nadeau Algarin
 Sunday, May 9, 2010 - Updated 36d 2h ago

E-mail Print \(2\) Comments Text size Share Buzz up!

From leading the blind to searching through rubble, working dogs are a tough breed. This month, local animal hospitals are pampering the pooches with eye exams.

The American College of Veterinary Ophthalmologists is holding its third annual National Service Dog Eye Exam Event this month, offering freebies for working dogs at animal hospitals, including nine in Massachusetts. Owners must register for the free exams online at acvoeyeexam.org by May 16.

+ Return to full article

Comments (2)
 Sorry, but the post that was in this spot has been removed as it did not follow our guidelines.

Sort: Oldest to Newest

#1392160 - May 9, 2010 10:37 AM EDT

Reggie
 ? 0 0

What a great public service gesture! Thank You American College of Veterinary Ophthalmologists!

Posted 1 month ago Reply Link Abusive
 « Previous 1 Next »

Already a member? Please sign in. | Privacy commitment

Join the BostonHerald.com community

Registration will help us improve the quality of our comments by keeping them on subject and in accordance with our guidelines.